Formerly Utilized Sites Remedial Action Program (FUSRAP)

ADMINISTRATIVE RECORD

for Maywood, New Jersey

U.S. Department of Energy

JUN 01 1995

Dear Resident:

MAYWOOD INTERIM STORAGE SITE - 1994 ENVIRONMENTAL SURVEILLANCE INFORMATION

The U. S. Department of Energy (DOE) has completed its interpretation and analysis of 1994 environmental surveillance data for the Maywood Interim Storage Site (MISS); this letter summarizes the results.

MISS is used for temporary storage of soils containing low levels of radioactive materials originating from the early years of the nation's atomic energy program. The site is managed by DOE.

Environmental surveillance activities at this site involve

- annual analyses of groundwater for radiological and chemical parameters;
- sediment sampling and analyses for metals and radiological parameters;
- data collection twice each year from instruments that continuously monitor the air to determine radon and thoron concentrations;
- data collection twice each year from instruments that continuously measure external gamma radiation exposure; and
- annual measurement of radon flux (the emission rate of radon from the surface of the stored waste).

Results from 1994 environmental surveillance are similar to results from previous years. Concentrations of radioisotopes in groundwater were well below DOE guidelines. No current public drinking water sources are being affected by MISS.

As part of the surveillance activities at MISS, sediment samples were collected along Westerly Brook and the upper portion of Lodi Brook, and the samples were analyzed for radioactive constituents and metals. This sampling program is conducted to ensure that radioactive constituents and metals are not being transported downstream through stream sediments. Sampling results in 1994 indicated that isolated areas containing radioisotopes continue to exist in Lodi Brook sediments near the Sears property.

Except for two onsite thoron concentrations measured by detectors next to an area where a thorium processing building once stood, radon and thoron concentrations in air and radon flux from the storage pile were well below limits established by DOE and the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). External gamma radiation levels were also well below guidelines.

Potential human exposures to radioactivity present at MISS were calculated on the basis of site surveillance data and local land usage. Results were less than four percent of the health-based guidelines established by EPA.

All county, state, and federal agencies providing oversight at MISS have received the environmental surveillance information for 1994. The information has also been placed in the DOE Administrative Record at the DOE Public Information Center, 43 West Pleasant Avenue in Maywood, and at the Maywood Public Library, 459 Maywood Avenue. The information can be found under the title Environmental Surveillance Results for 1994 for the Maywood Interim Storage Site.

If you would like to learn more about the MISS environmental surveillance program, you may call DOE's toll-free information number, 1-800-253-9759. For a prompt response, please leave a message and your phone number or address.

Please contact me if you wish to discuss the MISS environmental surveillance program or any other aspect of DOE's cleanup program in New Jersey.

Sincerely,

John Michael Japp, Site Manager
